Hello,

As someone who lives in Middletown, and attended the previous town hall, I'm still in disagreement with this landfill.

Here is one bit of information, I feel like no one has thought of - we talked about the animals that live or move throughout this habitat, and no one seemed to bat an eye at the idea that some of them could be displaced, but how about this - we're already in a place where there are too many people, too many houses, and we share the land with the locals (animals) but how many people already complain when a deer, or raccoon, or opossum are in their yard, eating their grass, or garden?

All that will happen from this landfill being built is more animals will move further into the community, and more people will complain - or there will be more roadkill to clean up, and in 5 months there will be a town hall about what can be done about this?

Well, the answer is right in front of you, don't build this landfill - not to mention the further implications that what goes in the ground at the landfill could potentially leak into the soil, groundwater, and potentially poison residents of both Middletown and Wawayanda.

We need to figure out solutions for having less waste, then adding to the already dire amount of waste scattered across this planet.

Also, you have to think, and I grew up on Staten Island where there was a massive landfill that you could smell from the opposite side of the island - and now they've covered it up with some dirt, and think they can call it a park - who the heck would want to go to a former landfill park? it's still toxic and will remain toxic forever, it will never go away because many of the items dumped in that landfill will unfortunately never go away, and this is what will happen at this planned sight when it's either too full, or too many complaints about the smell, noise from trucks come in - and you know what's worse at that stage no one will take responsibility for it, and it will just be a giant stain in the county - people will move, the economy will slow.

All of this needs to be considered.

I ask that you consider the serious implications that creating this landfill in this community will cause, and say no.

Thanks,
Christopher Eadicicco
